FOREWORD

The contributions of the early Greeks to our modern civilization are well-known to every college man. Sometime during the course of his studies at Wabash, the intellectual Little Giant becomes acquainted with various aspects of the Greek culture—especially the culture of fifth century Athens. But we are probably unmindful of the fact that there are many similarities between the culture of fifth century Athens and that of our own college community.

The Athenians placed great pride in their citizenship, but it is very doubtful that they could have been more jealous of their social affiliation than are the men of Wabash. Also, the Athenian society was "a man's world," a fact that coincides well with the total absence of skirts in Wabash classrooms. And though our Greek forefathers were still searching dimly into many scholarly fields, their spirit embodied the Liberal Arts Ideals which Wabash has fostered and cherished for more than a hundred and twenty years.

There are numerous other similarities which strengthen our claim to Greek ancestry. In organizing this book we have attempted to illustrate these similarities in picture and script. As you turn the pages of this volume we hope you will enjoy the story of the Wabash Greek of 1955.

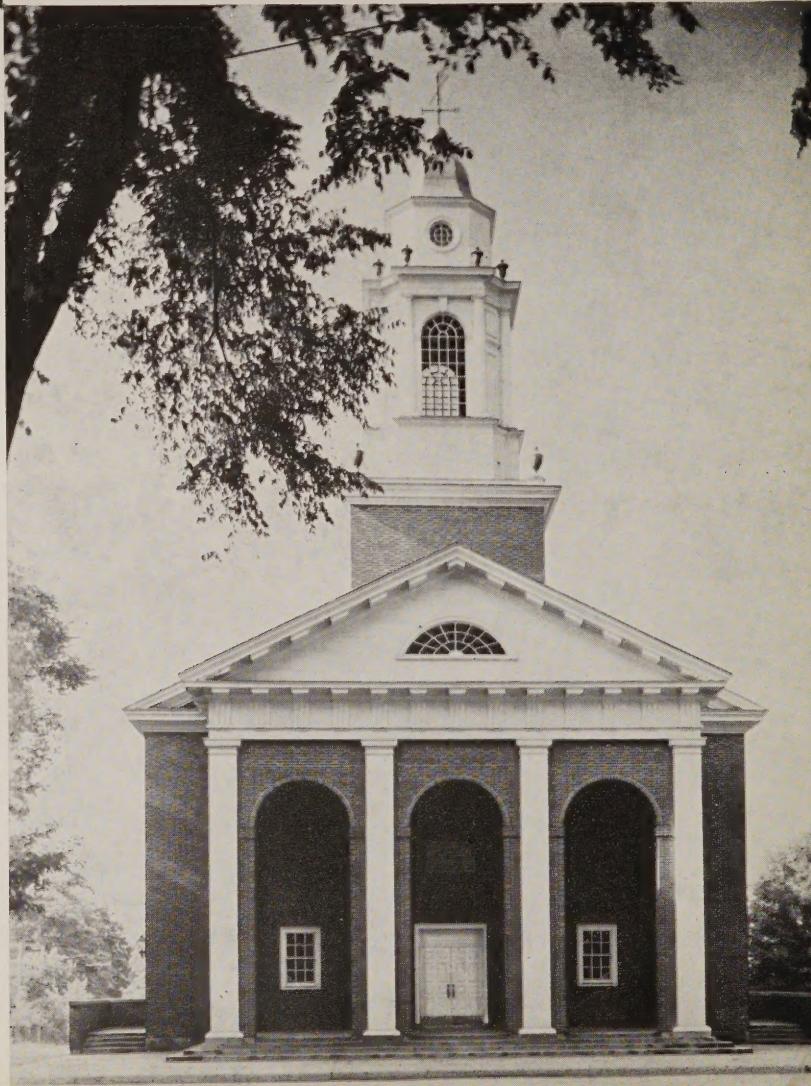

Chapel . . .

traditional assembly hall

In spite of recent improvements the Chapel, with its reverent simplicity, remains the most impressive building on campus. Many special programs were presented throughout the year in addition to the regular chapel meetings. Although some sturdy hearts were still "categorically opposed," the Ekklesia met by compulsion every Monday and Thursday. The programs offered quite a variety of talent and, with a few memorable exceptions, were well received.

Yandes Library . . .

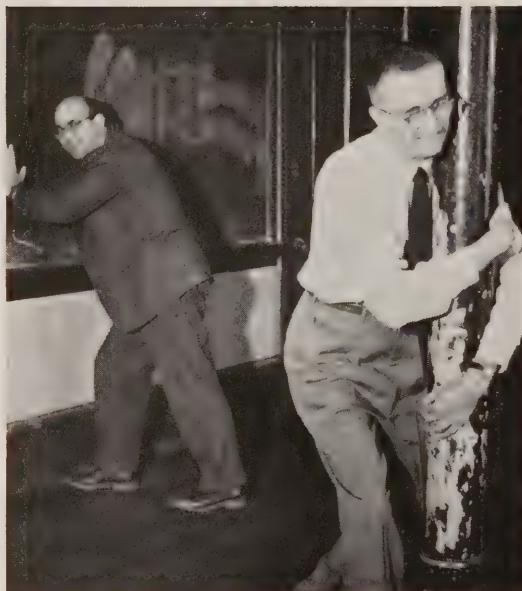

future auditorium

As the plans for a new, modern library crystallized, old Yandes Library served the Wabash community with its usual efficiency. The traditional crowds of students vying for reserve books the night before an exam kept the staff busy. Second semester term papers drove many freshmen to these hallowed halls with "new" and "perplexing" problems. The Sons of Rembrandt, using the second floor facilities, once again provided artistic distractions for Monday and Wednesday afternoon scholars.

South Hall ...

since 1838*

Breathing a hard last-breath between its cracks, South Hall braved the elements for the hundred and seventeenth year. The Scarlet Masque, having moved into their new quarters in the Green Room, was the only group on campus which hoped the building would not be dismantled. There is a good possibility that this second oldest building on the Wabash campus will be abandoned by September.

Goodrich Hall...

science building*

Home of the chemists, physicists, mathematicians, and alchemists, Goodrich Hall is another of the modern buildings on campus. Many Division I majors participated in the Science Fair that was held in November, and numerous demonstrations were exhibited in Goodrich Hall. At the time this book went to press there had been no major explosions.

Dr. Frank H. Sparks

PRESIDENT (SABIN FOUNDATION)

If any single person is the cause of the recent prosperity of Wabash College it is Dr. Sparks, Archon of the College. The untiring efforts of President Sparks have been beneficial not only for Wabash, but also for many other small liberal arts colleges. Public recognition for his work in the College-Industry Program was awarded Dr. Sparks in an article in The Saturday Evening Post last spring. The president left for a well-earned two month vacation in Africa at the beginning of the second semester.

MRS. H. HOWARD
Secretary to the President

Miss F. Scott
Secretary to the Dean

Dean Trippet, Polemarch of the "armies" of Wabash men for many years, is the personification of that intangible feeling which we call Wabash Spirit. Most adjectives used by Wabash men in describing the Dean are phrased in the superlative. One goes into his office as a lion and emerges as a lamb; or vice versa. In January of this year Dean Trippet was elected President of the American Conference of Academic Deans, an association representing over 700 colleges throughout the country. A fitting tribute for Mr. Wabash.

Dean B. K. Trippet
DEAN OF THE COLLEGE
A.B. (Wabash); A.B.,
A.M. (Oxford)

EDWARD C. GULLION
Collector for the Archon

At Wabash since 1947, Mr. Gullion assumed new duties this year as Director of the Campus Center. In his capacity as Assistant to the President, he also was charged with the administration of the Kellogg Grant for stimulation of summer programs on the Wabash campus.

R. E. BANTA
Collector for the Archon

Dick Banta, Assistant to the President, enjoyed his eighteenth mysterious year at Wabash. Students and faculty alike were still puzzled about the actual duties of Mr. Banta. His degree of O.L.S.—Oldest Living Sophomore—is the only one of its kind in the country. He also points proudly to the fact that he is the only Wabash alum who was president of his Junior Class two years in succession.

JAMES J. PATERSON
Director of Campus Festivities

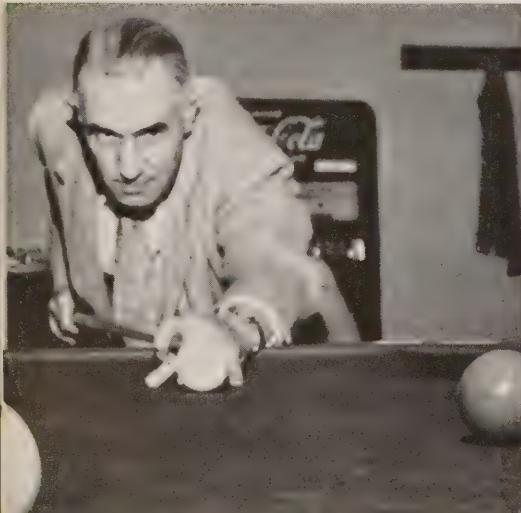

Mr. Paterson, Director of Student Activities and Assistant Professor of Economics, completed his twenty-eighth year at Wabash this year. He found his new "office" facilities at the Campus Center more than ample.

GEORGE V. KENDALL
Dean of the Sophists

Dean Kendall, Milligan Professor of English and Dean of the Faculty, has been at Wabash since 1920. The Dean once again directed the Colloquium sections and taught the Shakespeare course —two 'trademarks' of the Dean's great contribution to Wabash.

JOHN ORR III
Messenger of Thesmophetes

In his first year at Wabash, John served as Director of the News Bureau. A near calamity with his oil heater caused a great deal of excitement in Mud Hollow, but fortunately the only result was that the Orrs increased their personal insurance premium.

ROBERT S. HARVEY
Secretary of the Archon

Mr. Harvey serves Wabash both as Registrar and as an Assistant Professor of English. Secretaries in his office are Mrs. Muriel Matscy and Miss Mildred Roach.

Executive Secretary, Mrs. Adelaide Hayes; Receptionist, Mrs. Mary Rutledge.

FERGUSON R. ORMES, Treasurer of Athena

Mr. Ormes has served as Comptroller and Professor of Economics at Wabash since 1921. His office staff includes Mrs. Byrde Blaser, Mrs. Mary Schlemmer, and Mrs. Catharine Evans.

MORRISON C. HAVILAND
Bibliophylax

Mr. Haviland, serving in his fifth year as college librarian, ably provided his assistance to confused college researchers.

LIBRARY STAFF: Mrs. Janet Webb, Mrs. Muriel Matsey, Mrs. Barbara McKinsey, Mrs. Rose Golden, Mrs. Helen Foley, Mrs. Verna Wright, and Mrs. Gladys Otto.

CAMPUS CENTER OFFICE: Mrs. LaVerne Taylor and Mrs. Maude Schmitt.

ALUMNI OFFICE:—Sitting: Mrs. Sue Bell and Mrs. Alberta Ward. Standing: Miss Elsie Switzer, Mrs. Wilma Broshar, Mrs. Caroline Shular.

APPLICATION FOR ADMISSION

Applicants for Admission to Wabash College Should Read This Carefully.

1. This application should be filled out as completely as possible by the applicant and checked over by his parent or guardian. Fill it out as completely as possible and mail it to The Director of Admissions, Wabash College, Crawfordsville, Indiana.
2. The application should be filled out in ink, not pencil.
3. The application should be filled out in ink, not pencil. Payment against fees will be made in cash or by cashier's check in confirmation of the applicant's enrollment.
4. The applicant need not have paid a cash deposit—but he must be admitted before he can be awarded financial aid. He can be awarded financial aid only if he can be awarded financial aid.

Address all inquiries concerning a Director of Admissions, Wabash College, Crawfordsville, Ind.

To be filled out by the applicant in his own handwriting (not typewritten) and sent to the Director of Admissions, Wabash College, Crawfordsville, Indiana.

PORT AUTHORITIES: LOWELL H. HILDEBRAND, Director of Admissions; MYRON G. PHILLIPS, Associate Director of Admissions; JAMES PIKE and DR. AUSTIN COLE, Admissions Staff.

The admissions staff, under the direction of Mr. Hildebrand, spent another busy and profitable year disseminating the truth to lucky high school men who are eligible to attend Wabash. Dinner meetings for prospective students in various locales were well attended by alumni and students, and the Class of '59 was filling up by mid-winter.

Admissions Office: Mrs. DeLores Diehl and Mrs. Dorothy Beebe.

In Memoriam

Otto F. Fitzpatrick, superintendent of buildings and grounds at Wabash since 1942, died of a heart attack on February 6. He had been afflicted with a heart ailment for the past year. Mr. Fitzpatrick was active in the civic and fraternal life of Crawfordsville for many years.

Sophists

One of the principal drawing cards of Wabash is its distinguished faculty. From Art to Zoology, the sophists of Wabash are one of the few remaining faculties in the country who can trace direct lineage to the early Greek fathers. Pictured below are a few sophists caught by our candid camera in the midst of a speculative discussion.

The informal relation between students and faculty was well demonstrated in the new game room, where frequent conferences were held over a game of billiards. Several sophists petitioned the Campus Center Director for office space adjacent to the ping-pong table. Still others had namecards attached to their chairs in the Scarlet Inn.

Frequent letters to the Bachelor on the part of many professors proved both enlightening and amusing. Their verbal prowess always helped "clarify" the issues at stake. Professor Rogge made a timely exit to South America in February, leaving a brightly glowing kiln of controversy behind him.

Including in its number many authors and lecturers, most of the faculty are listed in Who's Who. Wabash seniors who have completed their seminars and oral comps give the most striking testimonials of the wit and wisdom of these modern sophists.

Plato Bedrick, Socrates Charles, and Aristotle Altizer, engaged in an intellectual discussion.

Students in Division III spend their time exploring the fields of history, psychology, political science, and economics. Favorite topics of discussion among Division III majors are Free Trade and Revolution. No important decisions are made by these men without consulting the leviathan.

Courses in English, literature, speech, philosophy, religion, and foreign languages are offered to majors in Division II. Thus the entire campus is embraced by the influences of Division II—from the somber depths of the basement of Chapel, to the resonant rafters of third floor Center Hall.

Division I majors spend their time pursuing the dark secrets housed in the temple of science. The catacombs of biology, mathematics, physics, chemistry, botany, and zoology vie for attention. Students enrolled in this division are recognizable by a blank stare, obstructed only by their thick glasses, and a slide rule which hangs from the belt.

JOSEPH S. HEIGHT, PH.D.
Assistant Professor of German

Dr. Height is a graduate of the University of British Columbia and the University of California. He joined the faculty in 1952, and is acting chairman of the German department.

RICHARD A. LAUBENGAYER, PH.D.

Associate Professor of Botany

Dr. Laubengayer, who attended Cornell University, has been on the Wabash faculty since 1946. He is co-author of a new biology text which will be published in 1956.

MORTON M. CELLER, M.S.

Assistant Professor of French

A Docteur de l'Université de Paris, Mr. Celler has been at Wabash since 1948. He is also a graduate of the College of the City of New York.

RALPH SAUL CAPLAN, M.A.

Assistant Professor of English

Mr. Caplan who has returned after a year's absence, is a graduate of Earlham College and Indiana University. He has become one of the three most popular speech instructors on campus.

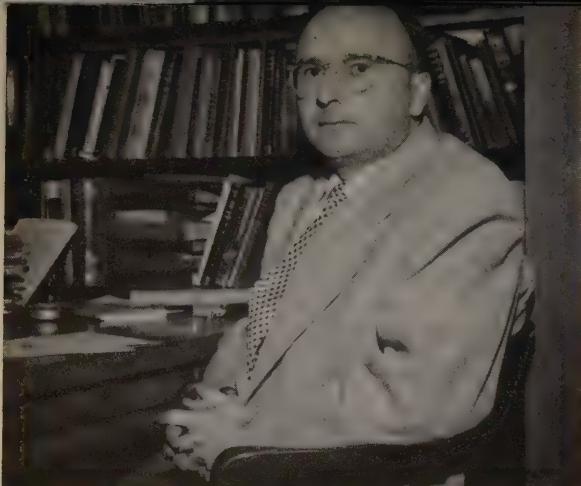

THOMAS J. ALTIZER, M.A.

Assistant Professor of Religion

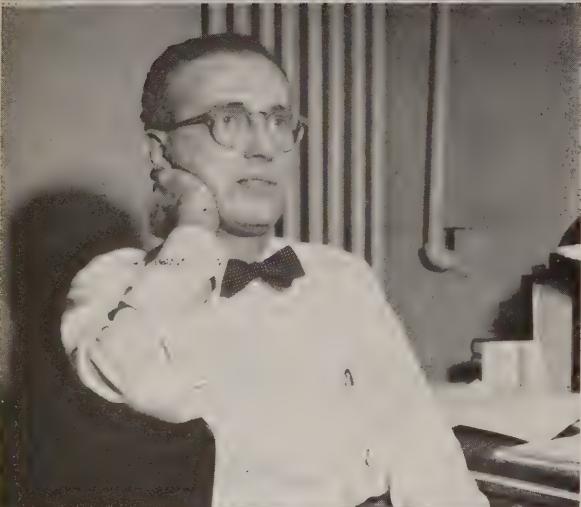

A freshman on the Wabash faculty, Mr. Altizer is an alumnus of the University of Chicago. In addition to his teaching duties he assists in the Wednesday devotional chapels.

JOHN LESLIE LAWRENCE, M.A.
Assistant Professor of Mathematics

Mr. Lawrence is a graduate of Wheaton College and the University of Michigan. He has been a member of the faculty since 1952. He is noted for a marked aversion to slide rules.

RICHARD R. STRAWN, PH.D.
Associate Professor of French

After having taught at the Universities of Kansas, Wyoming, Yale, and Indiana, Dr. Strawn joined the Wabash faculty in 1951. Upperclassmen still remember his artistic chapel rendition on the guitar.

GERHARDT H. W. ZUTHER, B.A.
Assistant in German

A graduate of DePauw, Mr. Zuther began teaching at Wabash last spring. He is disloyal to Wabash only at DePauw-Wabash games—saying very little the morning after.

FRANCIS E. THROW, PH.D.
Professor of Physics

Dr. Throw did his undergraduate work at Park College and his post-graduate at the University of Michigan. His first year on the Wabash faculty was 1952.

BENJAMIN A. ROGGE, PH.D.
Associate Professor of Economics

Dr. Rogge, currently on leave of absence at the University of Sao Paulo, Brazil, joined the Wabash faculty in 1949. He is a graduate of Northwestern University.

GEORGE ERNEST CARSALLEN, M.A.
Associate Professor of Mathematics

Mr. Carscallen is one of several members of the faculty who are Wabash graduates. He joined the mathematics department in 1920 after having taught at the University of Illinois.

LLOYD BRELSFORD HOWELL, PH.D.
Peck Professor of Chemistry

Dr. Howell is in his thirtieth year at Wabash as a member of the faculty; he, too, received his undergraduate education here. His graduate work was done at the University of Illinois.

Another Wabash alumnus, Dr. Long did his graduate work at Southern Methodist University and UCLA. In his second year on the faculty, he is the proud possessor of a coveted Sphinx Club award.

R. ROBERT MITCHUM, B.M.
Instructor in Music

Mr. Mitchum is not only director of the Glee Club and Instructor of Music, but also is in charge of student employment and treasurer of the Board of Publications.

WILLIAM A. HOFFMAN, M.S.
Assistant Professor of Chemistry

Mr. Hoffman is spending his first year at Wabash. He is a graduate of Missouri Valley College and Purdue University, and is a member of Sigma Xi and the American Chemical Society.

W. NORWOOD BRIGANCE, PH.D.
Professor of Speech

Another old-timer on the faculty, Dr. Brigance has been at Wabash since 1922. Prominent in speech affairs, he is the author of numerous books and publications in this field.

WARREN ALDRICH ROBERTS, PH.D.
Professor of Economics and Political Science

Dr. Roberts, who spent last summer in Guatemala observing the revolution, has been at Wabash since 1947. He is very active in both political and academic affairs.

PHILIP S. WILDER, PH.D.

Associate Professor of Political Science

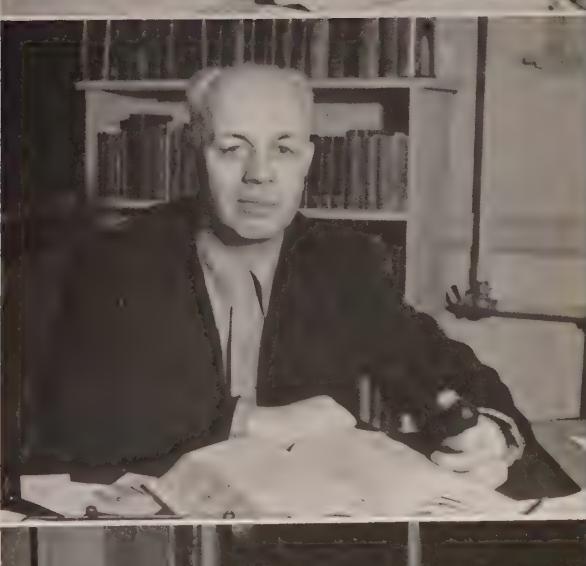

Dr. Wilder, who joined the Wabash faculty in 1949, is currently director of the Indiana Citizenship Clearing House. He is a graduate of Bowdoin College and Harvard University.

JOHN F. CHARLES, PH.D.

Lafayette Professor of Greek

After attending Oberlin College and the University of Chicago, Dr. Charles came to Wabash in 1940. He is president of the Indiana Conference, American Association of University Professors.

JAMES HARRY COTTON, PH.D.

Professor of Philosophy

Dr. Cotton, who was president of McCormick Theological Seminary before joining the faculty in 1947, is the author of seven books, the latest being Royce on the Human Self.

PAUL F. ROMBERG, PH.D.

Assistant Professor of Botany

This is Dr. Romberg's third year at Wabash. He formerly taught at the University of Nebraska. Dr. Romberg received his Ph.D. this year. He is a member of Sigma Xi.

WILLIS H. JOHNSON, PH.D.
Professor of Zoology

Dr. Johnson, a Wabash man, is chairman of the science division. He has been at Wabash since 1925 except for eleven years, 1935-1946, when he taught at Stanford University.

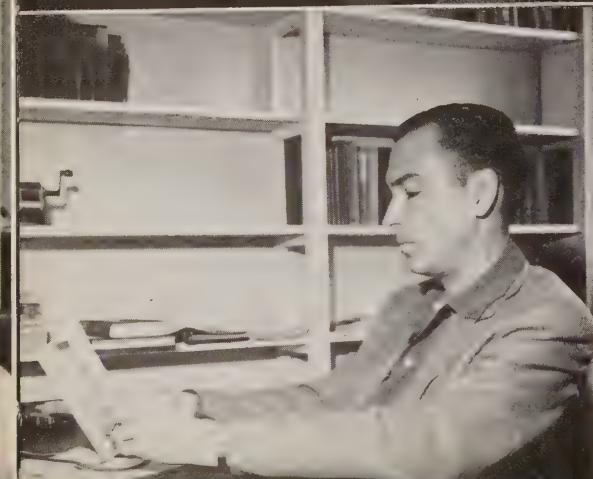

OWEN DUSTON, M.A.
Assistant Professor of English

In his first year at Wabash, Mr. Duston previously taught at MIT, Ohio University, and the University of Connecticut. He is a graduate of Boston and Haavaad Universities.

Dr. Van Sickle, co-author with Dr. Rogge of Introduction to Economics, served as economic advisor to the Chinese Nationalist Government last summer. He is a graduate of Harvard.

Classes

Just as in fifth century Athens, there is a distinct class system in operation on the Wabash Campus. The most illustrious individuals are the Eupatrids, the Senior Class. These men are not only the most wealthy; they are indeed the ruling class. Upon them rests the responsibility of governing the lower classes, especially the Thetes.

The Thetes, Freshmen, compose the poorest and most degenerate class on campus. There is no piece of property which they can really call their own, and they are completely at the mercy of all the other classes. Just slightly higher than the Thetes are the Zeugitae, the Sophomores. These men do have meagre property holdings, but they have absolutely no influence in the community. They are greatly overshadowed by the Hippeis, the Juniors. This latter class of men has more property; and they are nobles. They are not as powerful as the Eupatrids, but nevertheless are quite influential.

The redeeming feature of our class system is that, in time, every man can rise to the rank of Eupatrid. For after four years at Wabash the Eupatrids are sent out to colonize. During their stay on campus they learn what it takes to be successful—a lesson which for many generations has been well-learned by Wabash graduates.

Anaximander Passodelis, Empedacles Scott, and Xenophanes Johnston discussing the weather.

GAR WARNAR AIKINS

Gar, an English major, contributed much to Scarlet Masque activities, and received the coveted "Man of the Year" award.

President of both the German Club and Delta Phi Alpha, Cortes is a chemistry major. He was treasurer of Lambda Chi Alpha.

JOHN E. PIPPENGER

John was active in both Debate and Speakers' Bureau. He is affiliated with Phi Delta Theta, and is a Latin-Greek major.

RALPH GRAHAM POWELL

Belonging to YMCA and Public Affairs Forum, Brud is an economics major and a member of Phi Gamma Delta. He is married.

DONALD MEREDITH REAM, JR.

A member of Public Affairs Forum and the Glee Club, Don also worked on the Bachelor and Suave. His major is history.

CHARLES FRANCIS REINHARDT

Charley is a member of Pi Delta Epsilon and Delta Phi Alpha, and has worked on the Wabash for four years. His major is zoology.

ROBERT LEE REINKE

Having served as president of Delta Tau Delta, Bob was a member of Blue Key, Sphinx Club, and Pi Delta Epsilon.

JOHN KILLIAN RILEY

Jack played on the varsity baseball squad for four years, and was vice-president of Beta Theta Pi. He is an economics major.

JAMES ALBERT SABENS

A native of Crawfordsville, Jim is a zoology major. He is affiliated with Lambda Chi Alpha, and a member of Delta Phi Alpha.

JOHN LEWIS SAID

Majoring in economics and a member of Phi Delta Theta, John is also a member of Pi Delta Epsilon and Public Affairs Forum.

KARL ARTHUR SCHEFFER

Past president of Sigma Chi, Karl is an economics major. He is a member of Sphinx Club, and served on the Pan-Hel Council.

ERNEST L. SCOTT

President of both the Scarlet Masque and Blue Key, Ernie was editor of the Bachelor. He played the leading role in Caine Mutiny.

THOMAS HUGH SHEPHERD

A member of the varsity football and track teams for four years, Tom is also a member of Sphinx Club. He is a chemistry major.

GORDON RICHARD SMITH

A political science major, Gordy was editor of last year's Wabash. He is a Phi Gam, and president of the Board of Publications.

THOMAS ARTHUR STERLING

Majoring in English, Tom was president of Lambda Chi Alpha. He was a member of Scarlet Masque and Public Affairs Forum.

THOMAS DEAN TERRY

Affiliated with Lambda Chi Alpha, Tom was a member of both the Panhellenic and Senior Councils. He is a Division III major.

REX THOMAN

President of the German Club and secretary of Alpha Phi Omega, Rex also is a past vice-president of Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

JEAN PAUL TRENARY

A member of the Glee Club and Alpha Phi Omega for four years, Jean was also active in Scarlet Masque and Public Affairs Forum.

Ephebic Training

The Homecoming bonfire was a blazing success, and another Hoosierland farmer awoke to find that one of his "buildings" had been carted away.

Several Thetes were unaware of the importance of knowing the words to Old Wabash; they received a stimulus which helped them fare better on Alma Mater.

Each year the college community unites in the difficult task of indoctrinating the newly arrived Thetes with the famed traditions of Wabash College. The bulk of the task falls upon the Eu-patriots, and especially upon their executive body the Boule. But through hard and diligent work the Ephebic Training, training to groom the young citizens for their future role in the community, is completed.

The Thetes once again saw fit to paint the tradition-smeared Senior Bench. A group of unknown compatriots also robbed the "Hoosier Youth" of his axe. Justice prevailed, however: the bench was 'cleaned' and Abe was rearmed.

The bright colored "pots" of mid-September soon lost their lustre, and they were replaced by odoriferous rags of slight resemblance. The freshmen were puzzled at how they should know when to tip their "pots" if the seniors didn't wear their cords. The solution, of course, was to "tip them to everybody, then." After meeting most of their tests with fearful compliance, the freshmen earned their salvation by defeating a handful of Zeugitae in the annual Freshman-Sophomore Fight. And another Ephebic Training program was completed.

Boule

The Boule, governing body of the community, conducted its business with dignity and efficiency. The usual problems—the activities budget, freshman orientation, and Homecoming festivities—confronted the council. Unlike its predecessors of the past several years, this year's Senior Council escaped campus controversy and the censure of the press.

The Homecoming ceremonies planned by the council were very successful. Although some of the candidates for Homecoming Queen seemed a little disgruntled, the crowds greeted the Wabash Beauty with welcome arms, and agreed that there couldn't be a bigger Miss in America.

With the early appearance of the "Rhyne Signs," the council began its program of orientation for the new Cave-men. Several smokers were held before each of the songfests. The council further won student approval by exacting the traditional penalty on the 'winners' of the songfest—an action which last year's council repeatedly by-passed.

The Boule, following the dictate of campus sentiment, discussed the discrimination issue which arose on campus at the beginning of the second semester. The council members agreed, however, that any official action on the part of the council would be irrelevant since it lay outside of its jurisdiction.

In all its considerations the Boule reflected the wisdom of its Eupatrid members.

Areopagus

The Inter-Fraternity Council, the Areopagus, is the governing body of campus Greeks. The members of the council are elected by the various tribes, and their terms of office extends throughout the year in which they are members of the Hippeis class.

"Pan-Hel" is the biggest responsibility of the Areopagus. This year the council selected a "Las Vegas" theme for the dance weekend. Through careful planning and many hours of hard work the annual "Lost Weekend" was a tremendous success.

The council also sponsored the traditional Mother's Day song contest among the eight fraternities. A "full house" packed the Chapel for the May 1 affair.

President Tom Hollett, Sigma Chi, attended the National Inter-Fraternity Council Conference, which was held at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia on December 3 and 4. This was the first time in many years that Wabash had a representative at the national meeting.

One of the major projects of the council for the first semester was the adoption of a constitution. The Areopagus also considered a "fall rush" proposal submitted by the admissions department, defeating it by a close vote. Exchange dinners were renewed, and were mildly successful.

Phrontistidia

Wayne Broshar, Phil McKinsey, Al Dewey.

Three Phrontistidia (Little Thinkers) of the Class of '55 were elected to Phi Beta Kappa in their junior year. All three of these men had perfect 3.00 averages.

As every Greek knows, Phi Beta Kappa was founded in 1776—the first secret fraternity in our country. It grew out of the "Flat Hat Club" at the College of William and Mary. It operated successfully until 1831, when its secrets were disclosed by the Harvard Chapter. Since then Phi Beta Kappa has become the number one honorary scholastic fraternity: the trademark of the scholar.

Proxenoi

The Proxenoi (public servants), members of Alpha Phi Omega, decorated both the Chapel and the Campus Center for the Christmas holidays. The Wabash chapter of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity composed of former boy scouts, was active throughout the year, and served the college community in many ways.

Poietoi

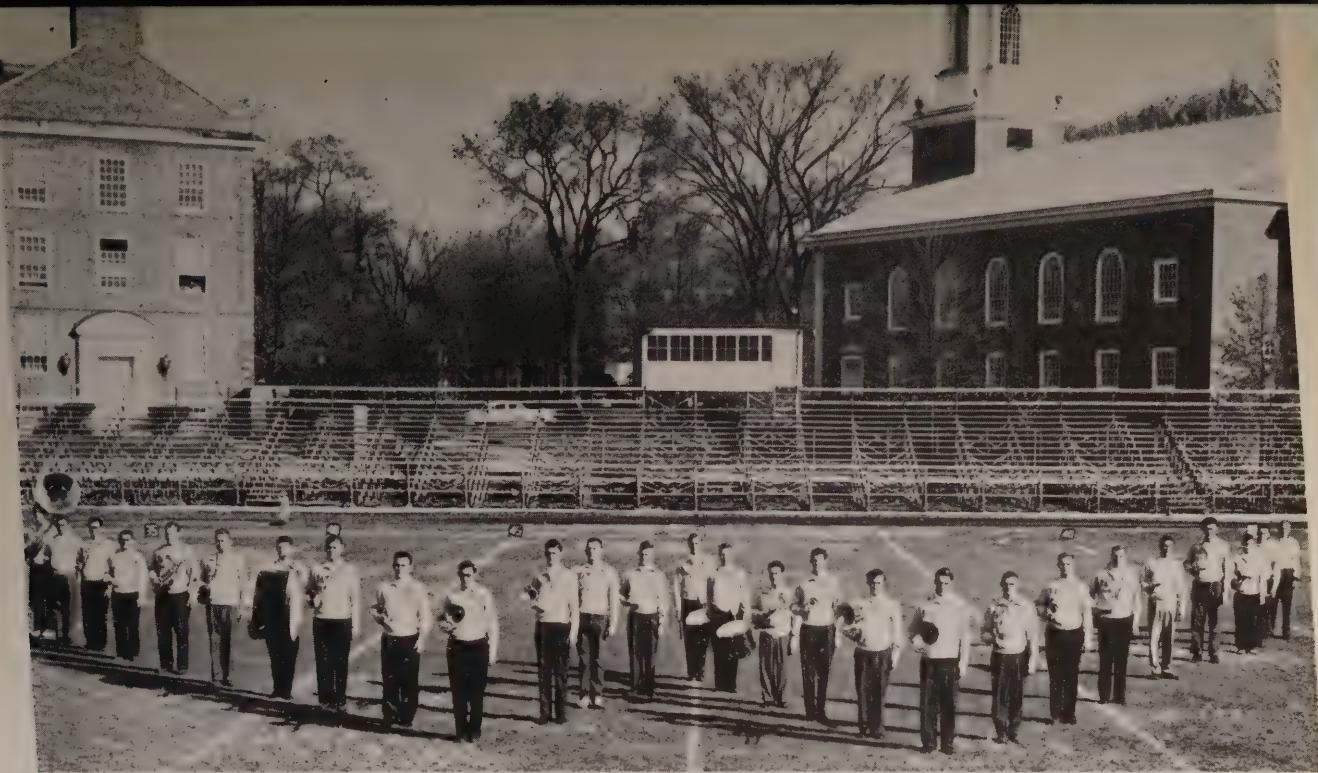

The Writers Club enjoyed another hectic year of existence under the capable sponsorship of Ralph Caplan. The purpose of the group is to stimulate interest in creative writing among the members of the student body. At informal evening meetings the writers meet to read and critically analyze their own efforts as well as the college publications.

Tragodoi

Meeting informally every other week, the Drama Reading Group draws its membership from students and faculty members interested in drama. A few of the plays read during the past year included "The Importance of Being Ernest," "The Hairy Ape," and "The Little Foxes." The group was also planning for a chapel program in late spring.

Mousikoi

For the second consecutive year Mitchum's enlarged and vastly improved concert band got up and marched. In addition to their halftime contributions, the band traveled to the Bradley and Butler games to outplay both of these larger aggregations. The bass drum and tuba also echoed through the gym at all basketball games, giving that "intangible Wabash spirit" a very tangible boost. The Mousikoi are indeed an invaluable organization on the Wabash campus.

Choreutai

Singing its way through a very successful year, the Glee Club, under the very able direction of Bob Mitchum, was the unofficial good will ambassador of Wabash College. The organization appeared before 36 audiences, including the State Convention of Indiana Music Educators, the Campus Center dedication audience, and at numerous high schools. The Choreutai also appeared in joint concert with the choirs of DePauw University, Earlham College, and MacMurray College for Women.

DUANE NEET

Comodoi

Climaxed by the world's first amateur production of "The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial," the Scarlet Masque had another very successful season. Under the tutelage of freshman director Don Baker, the Masque continued the "tradition" of taking the spring show 'on the road' for a South Bend audience.

Aristocrats

With their primary interest being to frustrate the Young Democrats, the Will Hays Club was very active in local and state elections. The Young Republicans also co-sponsored the appearance of Representative Charles Halleck at a meeting of the Public Affairs Forum. Several faculty politicians help co-ordinate the activities of the club.

Democrats

Clinging desperately to its few remaining active members, the Tom Marshall Club withstood the political elements for another tumultuous year. At election time the Young Democrats distributed posters and poll book holders to all Crawfordsville precincts. As demonstrated by the picture below, they took advantage of every opportunity to trample the opposition.

Politicoi

The largest student organization on campus, the Public Affairs Forum sponsors discussion groups, speakers, and motion pictures.

They staged a Mock Parliamentary Debate on the discriminatory clause issue. One of the key speakers of the year was Chester Bowles, former head of the Office of Price Administration. Pictures of the Murrow-McCarthy debacle were also viewed by the group.

Angeloii

The Angeloii (messengers) are charged with the duty of publicizing the accomplishments of Wabash College and its members. This year, for the first time, the News Bureau had a full-time director in the person of John Orr. Members of the bureau send out all sport releases, and send stories on individual achievements of Wabash students to their respective hometown newspapers.

German Club

The German Club sponsored many typical "deutsch" activities, including a Christmas Nativity Pageant and German movies. The group also proved to be quite proficient at the game of soccer, and they trimmed the DePauw squad to win the Indiana Inter-Deutsch Championship.

French Club

According to word from Mr. Celler, the French Club is "defunct." Previous to their sudden death the group met for dinner meetings once a month. At these meetings only French was spoken. The college community mourns the passing of its French brethren.

YMCA

During the past year the YMCA has had several outside speakers, and has sponsored numerous informal discussions at its regular meetings. The organization also sponsored the Lenten services held in the South Mezzanine of the Campus Center. The primary aim of the group is to focus attention on current Christian problems through their meetings.

Newman Club

Named in honor of the famous American Cardinal, the Newman Club is an organization for all men of the Roman Catholic faith. The Bishop of Lafayette addressed the group at its annual breakfast in the fall. The club has no dues, and holds no formal meetings. Regular Communion Sundays are observed by the members.

Donors of the annual Class Day awards, the Sphinx Club is the organization composed of men outstanding in sports and activities. Last year the club provided ushers for the Wabash Relays, and carried out its traditional initiation rights with familiar gusto.

New quarters in the Campus Center have recently been completed which will provide well-equipped work rooms for the members of the Photography Club. The purpose of this club is to stimulate interest in amateur photography, and to learn more about various phases of photography through group participation.

Radio Club

Now in its third year on campus, the Wabash Radio Club has affiliated with the Crawfordsville Radio Club. The organizations meet once a month for lectures, films, demonstrations, and the ever popular attraction, ham operating. It is rumored that radio Moscow has been coming in quite clear.

Washington Semester Men Named

Jay Longacre and Al Weber have been selected to participate in the Washington Semester Program at American University next semester.

This will be the second time Wabash students have taken part in the program. John Deardourff and Edwards were last year's participants.

The program is designed "to select college undergraduates for a more realistic picture of national and international affairs so that they may become better citizen leaders in the democratic society".

Besides a night study curriculum of six to nine semester hours, the young junior takes part in a seminar, a field project, and special activities. The weekly seminars take the form of field trips to government agencies, consultation with government officials, and evaluation studies led by their instructors.

The Bachelor

EDITORS FRANK RASMUSSEN and ERNIE SCOTT.

"A return to respectability" marked a turning point for the once controversial Bachelor. Editors Ernie Scott and Frank Rasmussen proved to a few skeptics that a college newspaper does not have to be radical to be read and appreciated by its subscribers. The editorial page was well supplied with material from faculty members and students as important campus issues replaced national political fabrications.

The new publications office was much appreciated and put to full use by the staff members of the Bachelor. The professional atmosphere of the new quarters was a radical change from the dismal walls and broken-down typewriters of the old South Hall address. The April 1 edition caused a widespread alarm on campus among students, faculty, and even some prominent members of the administration.

The Wabash

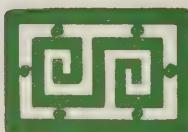

A yearbook is supposed to be a record of the year's activities in picture and script. With this object in mind, the 1955 Wabash has tried to set aside many of the formal yearbook conventions, and to portray Wabash at its informal best. Assembling a book of this kind takes many long hours of work, and the various staff members deserve special recognition.

Larry Flink, Associate Editor

Charles Reinhardt, Business Manager

Bob Stoothoff served as Photographic Editor and also edited the faculty section.

The post of Sports Editor was filled by Chuck Rohm, and Charles Nabors supervised the copy for the activities section. Dr. John Charles served as the authority for our Anglo-Greek vocabulary. Mr. Robert Harvey, secretary of the Board of Publications and Mr. Robert Mitchum, treasurer, provided advice on policy and finance—important necessities to yearbook production.

Suave

Enjoying a well-earned calm after two stormy years, Suave escaped the attack of both the free press and the student body. With memories of the Caveman growing dimmer by the year, the acceptance of Suave has come as a matter of course. Editor Fred Meyer published three issues of Suave—Homecoming, Christmas, and Pan-Hel—all richly spiced with timely cartoons by Nall, Kraas, and Goto.

Garland Frazier
STEWARD OF THE GAMES

Although the early Greeks were very athletic-minded, they would have been quite puzzled on viewing a modern football, basketball, or baseball contest. In track, however, the Decathlon is a direct descendant of the Pentathlon of the Olympic Games. And in Gar Frazier, Director of Athletics, we find a counterpart of the Steward of the Games of fifth century Athens. The position of Trainer is comparable to that of the Greek Paidotribes. Thus we see that the Modern Greek Athlete can also trace his lineage to our Greek forefathers.

Wabash vs. Valparaiso

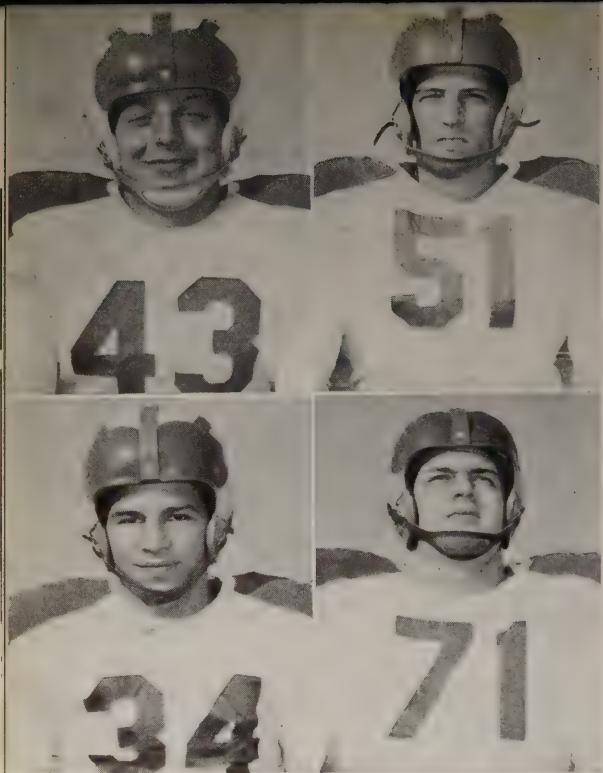

The Little Giants opened the 1954 football season in fine style, beating Valparaiso University 14 to 6 at the loser's field. This victory provided the start for what proved to be Wabash's most successful season since the defeatless 1951 campaign.

The early minutes of the contest seemed to indicate an easy win for the Crusaders as they stopped Wabash cold and then proceeded to rack up a quick touchdown. The game was only eight plays old, four by each team, when quarterback Gordy Helms passed to Ken Schreiber in the end zone. The try for the point went wide and Valpo lead 6 to 0.

Late in the same quarter the Little Giants came back to tie the score on a beautiful play by quarterback Vaino Grayam. After faking a handoff and bootlegging it out into the flat, Vaino threw a strike to end Dennis Burdock for a six pointer. He then kicked the point after touchdown to give Wabash a halftime lead of 7 to 6.

Midway in the third quarter, freshman fullback Bill Gabbert slipped through a hole in the right side of the line, shook loose would-be tacklers, and got away for an explosive 71 yard touchdown run. Grayam's kick again was true for the Big Red's fourteenth point.

The victory was an expensive one as it saw senior halfback Chris Passodelis sidelined for the season with a shoulder injury. But nevertheless it was a welcome one, for the 14 to 6 win marked the first time in three years Wabash had won the season's opener with Valparaiso.

Wabash vs. Albion

The Wabash football squad continued its winning ways by topping Albion College 14 to 0 in a sluggish and sloppy contest. This was the second of six straight away-games. This scheduling freak was necessary to provide time for the relocated Ingalls Field to be made ready for competition.

The first quarter was marked only by a lack of offensive brilliance on the part of both teams. At the start of the second quarter, however, Wabash put together a 79 yard drive to reach pay dirt. Marv Sweeny's 17 yard run and three passes moved the ball to the Albion 10 yard line. From there Jim Jackson took a pitchout and dashed into the end zone for a touchdown. Grayam kicked the point and the score was 7 to 0 in favor of the Cavemen. The rest of the half was relatively uneventful, the best either team could do being an Albion push to the Wabash 27.

The second half was as lacking in excitement as the first. In the third quarter Albion made its deepest penetration of the day by reaching the Big Red 17 yard line. Then on the first play of the fourth quarter the Little Giants recovered a fumble on the Albion 41. Jackson and Sweeny carried to the 19 where Grayam threw to end Bob Schwab for the score. Vaino kicked his fourth straight PAT to make the final score Wabash 14, Albion 0.

Wabash vs. Butler

The famed Iron Key, prized symbol of supremacy of the Wabash-Butler football rivalry, returned to the Wabash campus as the Little Giants powered to a 21 to 14 win in Indianapolis.

The Cavemen were forced to come from behind before finally subduing the stubborn Bulldogs. Butler scored early in the first quarter to grab a 7 to 0 lead which they retained throughout the first half. But the Little Giants stormed out after the intermission to take control of the game. Vaino Grayam directed a Wabash drive which culminated with a four-yard touchdown pass from Grayam to Al Pavlikowski. Grayam's extra point attempt was good and the score stood 7 to 7.

The fourth quarter brought more scores for Wabash and one for Butler. Fullback Gabbert ended a sixty yard march by smashing over the right side of the line to pay dirt. Again Grayam added the extra point. The Little Giants final tally came a few minutes later when halfback Don Kaley intercepted a pass on the Butler 41-yard line. Two quick first downs brought Wabash to the 18, where Grayam passed to Bob Schwab for the score. The extra point was true and Wabash led 21 to 7. Butler scored in the last minute of play but it wasn't enough to overcome the Wabash lead.

Wabash vs. Ohio Wesleyan

The undefeated Little Giants invaded Delaware, Ohio to face the once beaten Bishops of Ohio Wesleyan, who were eager to avenge the previous year's tie game, which was the first blemish on a long winning streak.

Wesleyan drew first blood. With two minutes remaining in the first period, the Bishops intercepted a Wabash pass on their own thirty-two. Short finally drove over for the score, and Ferguson made the conversion.

On the following kick-off Wesleyan recovered a Wabash fumble and two plays later connected on a 29 yard touchdown pass. The PAT was again added, giving the Bishops a 14 to 0 lead. The Cavemen quickly recovered and drove 65 yards for their first score, with Gabbert carrying for the TD. Grayam converted, leaving the Cavemen down 14 to 7 at the half.

Early in the third period the Little Giants staged an eighty yard touchdown drive, capped by Don Kaley's 18 yard dash for the tally. Grayam again converted to even the score.

In the final seconds of the same quarter the Bishops completed a forty-two yard TD pass and added the conversion. Wesleyan then put the clincher on Wabash's only defeat of the season with a thirteen yard scoring run. The game ended with the Little Giants on the short end of a 28 to 14 score.

Wabash vs. Bradley

Determined to atone for their loss to Ohio Wesleyan, the Little Giants next traveled to Peoria, Illinois to take on the Braves of Bradley University. However, the Big Red found the going tough and had to settle for a 7 to 7 tie.

The Braves postponed Wabash plans to get back in the winning habit by pulling the game out of the fire with less than a minute to play. A Wabash fumble on the Bradley goal line set the stage for the tying touchdown. With one eye on the clock Bradley drove downfield to push over the score, Don Hakes going the final seven yards on a reverse play. The conversion was good and the game ended before the Little Giants had an opportunity to move the ball.

Wabash made their only tally in the late minutes of the second quarter. Bill Gabbert crashed over tackle from the one yard line to end a 75 yard sustained drive. Vaino Grayam then kicked his tenth consecutive PAT of the season to give the Cavemen a 7 to 0 lead.

The 7-7 tie was the first meeting between the two schools since the Little Giants whipped the Braves in 1927.

Wabash vs. Sewanee

Wabash completed its away-from-home schedule by grinding out a 17 to 0 win over the University of the South on the Tennessee campus.

Impressed by their mode of transportation, they also took care of the game by going to the air, beating Sewanee for the third straight year.

It was the good right arm and accurate right toe of Vaino Grayam that highlighted the game. Vaino kicked a field goal and passed for two touchdowns to figure in all the scoring. There was no score until late in the second period when Grayam completed an aerial to Dennis Burdock for the first tally. His extra point attempt was perfect and Wabash held a 7 to 0 half-time lead.

After a scoreless third quarter the Cavemen, led by Vic Lodovisi, started the fourth period by moving deep into Sewanee territory. But at the 17 yard line it appeared that their drive had stalled. On fourth down Grayam came in to split the uprights with a field goal and push the Wabash lead to 10 to 0. In the final minutes of the game the Little Giants recovered a fumble in Tiger territory. Two Grayam passes, the second one to end Tom Shepherd, plus a Grayam conversion accounted for the final Wabash scores. The 17 to 0 victory was the second shutout of the season for the improving Caveman squad.

Wabash vs. Carroll

Capitalizing on Carroll College mis-cues, the Cavemen rewarded a chilled and snowed-upon Homecoming crowd of 2500 with a 25 to 14 win.

Two first quarter Pioneer fumbles resulted in quick Wabash scores. The first was a bobble on their own 16 yard line. On the initial play from scrimmage Al Pavlikowski skirted right end for the touchdown. On the ensuing kickoff Gil Shoaf recovered a Carroll fumble on the 23 yard line. A Grayam to Schwab pass put the ball on the one and Vaino sneaked it over for the score.

Carroll recovered a fumble on the Wabash 45 yard line and turned the break into a touchdown. Quarterback Ken Goble passed for the six points. Later in the second period line-backer Tom Marchando picked off a Goble pass and sprinted 68 yards to pay dirt. This time Grayam's kick was good and the Cavemen led 19 to 7 at halftime.

There were no serious scoring threats until late in the fourth quarter when Bill Gabbert culminated a 65 yard march by scoring the last Wabash touchdown. Carroll bounced right back and tallied seven points, but it wasn't enough as the score-board showed Wabash 25, Carroll 14 at the final gun.

Wabash vs. Beloit

Powering to the season's high scoring total, the Little Giants scuttled the Buccaneers of Beloit College 45 to 14 before an admiring crowd of Wabash Dads. Seven Cavemen hit pay dirt in the rout which also provided the season's high total net yardage gained of 481 yards.

Wabash took the opening kickoff and drove seventy-one yards for the score, Al Pavlikowski bucking across. In the second quarter Vaino Grayam, with a beautiful exhibition of broken field running, went 45 yards for a touchdown. Then Vic Lodovisi came in to add to Beloit's misery. Vic first heaved a scoring pass to Tom Shepherd, and then connected with halfback Ron Bean for the Cavemen's fourth tally. During this time Beloit could manage only one touchdown and thus trailed the Little Giants 26 to 7 at the intermission.

In the early minutes of the third quarter Grayam threw to Schwab for another TD. Then, after having a 56 yard run into the end zone nullified by a penalty, Lodovisi hit Bob Allen for another aerial six pointer. In the fourth stanza halfback Dick Duncan ended another drive by going across from the two for the final Wabash touchdown. The Cavemen added three PATs to their impressive score in seven tries. Beloit scored once this half also, to make the final score Wabash 45, Beloit 14.

Wabash vs. DePauw

The season finale against DePauw University, the sixty-second renewal of this rivalry, was played at Ingalls Field. Not since 1948 had DePauw bested Wabash on the gridiron, and not since 1951 had the Tigers even scored in the Monon Bell struggle. This year the Little Giants followed both of those precedents, crushing the toothless Tigers 28 to 0.

The first time the Cavemen got the ball they scored. Fullback Bill Gabbert climaxed a 50 yard march by smashing over tackle from the two. Grayam kicked the first of four perfect placements to make the score 7-0. Late in the second quarter Wabash gained control of the ball on the Tiger 34 yard line. In just three plays Gabbert carried the ball for another TD.

Midway in the third period Don Kaley sprinted across the double stripe for the third Wabash tally. In the closing minutes of the same quarter Vaino Grayam went ten yards on a quarterback keep for another six points. Hampered by four pass interceptions and a total assessment of 115 yards in penalties, the Cavemen could score no more. The game ended with the scoreboard reading Wabash 28, DePauw 0.

And so coach Garland Frazier and his squad rang down the curtain on another successful fall. The season's ledger showed seven victories and one tie as against only one loss; and the Iron Key and the Monon Bell were in residence in the Scarlet Inn.

Basketball

With a record of 12 wins, 6 losses, and a tie, the 1954-1955 Wabash basketball team completed its most successful season in many years. Under the tutelage of coach Bob Brock, the Cave-men played a brand of basketball that won hearty approval from the vociferous Wabash cheering section.

Coach Bob Brock and Assistant Coach Walt Bartkiewicz

Coach Brock's basketball squad opened the 1954-1955 season on their home floor against St. Joseph College. The debut turned out to be a poor one as the cold Cavemen went down by a 76 to 58 score.

Three days later the Little Giants invaded Greencastle for the first game of the annual home-and-home Wabash-De-Pauw series. Wabash took the lead at half time, but in the second period De-Pauw came back to close the gap and seemingly win 67 to 66. However, a recheck of the scorebooks showed that Wabash had scored one more point than it was credited with. So after a conference of officials of both schools, the game was declared a tie contest.

Rex fights for the rebound

Next the Little Giants tangled with their other arch-rival, Butler University. Despite Rex McCoy's 25 point performance, the Bulldogs proved to be too tough on their home floor, winning 79 to 67. Returning home, Wabash finally hit the victory path by whipping Findlay 76 to 63. Then, in a stirring exhibition of Wabash fight, the Cavemen came back from a 13 point halftime deficit to slip by highly touted Beloit 70 to 68. Continuing their winning ways, they next thumped Ball State 83 to 64.

During the Christmas holidays Coach Brock's boys traveled to Quantico, Virginia to participate in the Quantico Marine Invitation Tourney. Led by McCoy's 27 points, they won their opener against Fairleigh-Dickinson 86 to 68. But in the second round they lost to the host Marines 92 to 78. A 77 to 61 win over Buffalo in the consolation game wound up the tourney for the Cavemen. They thus started the new year with a 5-3-1 record.

Against Indiana Central, the Little Giants finished fast to grab a 78 to 69 victory. Then with revenge in their hearts the Cavemen faced Butler in a return engagement. Led by Jay Crittenden's 24 point showing, they displayed their best form of the season to trounce the Bulldogs 83 to 62. Franklin College became their fourth straight victim, bowing 62 to 60.

Wabash now took an ill-fated northern trip, losing to Beloit 93 to 72 and to Lake Forest 77 to 66. Upon returning home though, the Cavemen also returned to their winning ways, beating Indiana Central for the second time 73 to 69 as Crittenden hit 26 points and John Thrapp tallied 22. Franklin College became the next two-time loser, falling to the Little Giants by a 74 to 61 score.

On February 14 Wabash played host to DePauw in the long awaited play-off of the tie game. The hapless Tigers got anything but a Valentine as the Cavemen whipped them 86 to 76. The score was knotted 36-all at the half; then Wabash exploded for 27 points in the third quarter to put the game out of reach. Jay Crittenden led all scorers with 27 points, and three other Cavemen—McCoy, Thrapp, and Nash—scored in the teens.

Ball State ended the Little Giant's three game victory skein by downing them 80 to 70 at Muncie. Wabash finished its season against Lawrence Tech in Detroit. Rex McCoy wrote the finale to a magnificent college career by scoring 26 points to lead his teammates to a 72 to 57 victory.

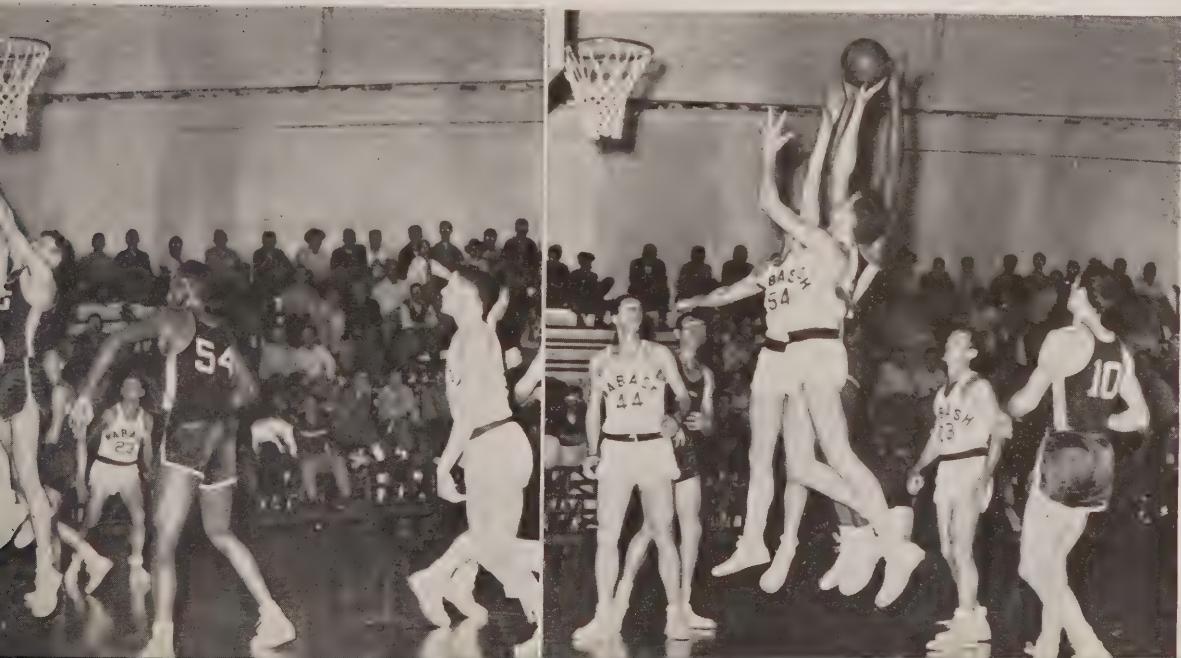

The whole team must be considered when the laurels are handed out, but in particular the names of Jay Crittenden and Rex McCoy deserve special mention. Crittenden, the leading scorer of last year's team, averaged 15.4 points a game. McCoy was one of the finest basketball players ever to don the scarlet uniform of Wabash College. In four years of varsity play Rex totaled 1001 points—a school record. His 16.6 point a game average this year led the team. He was chosen most valuable player his sophomore, junior, and senior years and at the end of this season was elected Honorary Captain.

Track

Spring found track coach Owen Huntsman confidently looking forward to a very successful track season. Despite the loss by graduation of Stan Huntsman, Jim Adams, and Bob Williams, the Little Giants still have at least one letterman in almost every event. In addition to these thirteen monogram winners, coach Huntsman has an extraordinary crew of freshmen tracksters. Eleven first year men gained positions on the squad.

In the distances are senior lettermen Carlos Gowin, sophomore letterman Clarence Mann, and three freshmen. Dueling with Gowin for the top spot in this event are Jim Shively and Mann. Now that Gowin has switched to the 880 yard run, the two-milers are exclusively a freshman crew. Shively and Lloyd Scaggs, both cross-country lettermen, plus Neal Jones look like a good bet to run 1-2-3 in some meets. Besides Gowin in the half-mile, there are sophomores Bob Litschert and Dave Rockaway.

SENIORS—Tim Johnston, Tom Shepherd, Jean Trenary, Lynn Ault, Carlos Gowin, Bob Kellogg.

Timmons and Shepherd run hard in mile relay

In the 440 Dick Puls and Lynn Ault, two lettermen, are battling for the top spot. The 100 and 220 yard dashes appear to be dominated by freshman speedster Del Willsey. But he is being pushed in these events by upperclass lettermen Tim Johnston, Don Kaley, and George Seidensticker.

Junior lettermen Kaley, holder of the school record in the low hurdles, and Dick Hickman lead the hurdlers. They are helped in the lows by freshman Terry McCall and in the highs by letterman Tom Shepherd and freshman Tom Steele.

The pole vault is dominated by Ron Stasch, who appears to be a good bet to break the school record in this event. John Robertson, a sophomore letterman, is the best of the broad jumpers, although Seidensticker and Stasch both can better twenty-one feet in this event. Jacks-of-all trades Stasch and Shepherd handle the high jumping. Both the shot-put and the discus are handled by letterman Al Connor. Gil Shoaf, Jean Trenary, and Haddon Ridgway are all capable of placing in these events. Bill Bolosky, another letterman, plus Chuck Saunders and Stasch heave the javelin.

The mile relay team of Litschert, Shepherd, Ault, and Puls figures to be one of the best in the state. All four of these men can run close to fifty-second quarters, and Puls and Ault will probably eclipse this time.

Highlights of the schedule which includes eight dual meets, are the Wabash Relays, the Beloit Relays, and the Little State meet. This year will mark the second running of the Wabash Relays. Last year Wabash won five of the thirteen events and Stan Huntsman of the Little Giant squad was named the outstanding individual athlete. This year coach Huntsman hopes to repeat this domination of "his own show" and to match the 1952 team's feat of winning the Little State.

With a letterman in almost every position, baseball coach Walt Bartkiewicz looks forward at the start of the season toward bettering the 9 won, 11 lost record of the 1954 squad. All in all, eleven lettermen have returned to seek positions on the Caveman nine this spring.

The pitching staff claims three of these monogram winners. Seniors Tom Long and Jack Riley plus junior Bob Dyer are Bartkiewicz's three regular hurlers. Bruce Swanson and Gene Pride provide bench strength for the moundsmen. Two senior lettermen, Vaino Grayam and Dick Barger, will alternate as battery-mates for these men.

At first base will be last year's most valuable player, Dennis Burdock. Vince Grogg is holding down second base ahead of Bob Stewart. Another senior letterman, Rex McCoy, will play his third season at shortstop. He is backed by Jerry Schneider, a junior. Dick Sylvester will handle the "hot corner" ahead of another junior, Ed Grogg.

The outfield is composed of three sophomores: lettermen Dave Parry, Vic Lodovisi, and Al Perdew. When Dyer is not pitching, he will usually replace Perdew in right field. Several freshmen have shown up well in early workouts and may earn positions on the varsity before the season's end.

Cross Country

Again the Wabash cross country team, under the tutelage of Coach J. Owen Huntsman, combined their efforts to bring home a winning season. Headed by senior Carlos Gowin, sophomores Clarence Mann and Tom Olshevsky, and freshmen Jim Shively, Lloyd Scaggs, Ray Peterson, and Oval Myers, the team compiled a 7-2 record. The season was highlighted by a double win over DePauw and victories over Albion, Butler, Valparaiso, Indiana Central, and Washington University. The two defeats were dealt to the Cavemen by Ohio Wesleyan and Ball State.

Although the loss of the services of Carlos Gowin will be sorrowfully felt next fall, the fine showing by Jim Shively indicates that Gowin's shoes will be capably filled. With the bulk of this year's team consisting of underclassmen, the harriers will be looking for an equally successful season next fall.

Led by lettermen Al Schuster and Ron Cuddek, the team consisting of Ron Anderson, John Banghart, John Berry, John Deardourff, Pete Douthit, Ed Hargitt, Jim Law, and Don Selle will start their season with meets against the University Club of Memphis, Southwestern, Memphis State, and Bethel College. Upon their return from this southern tour they will meet Indiana State, Bradley, Indiana Central, Butler, Valparaiso, DePauw, Ball State, and Cincinnati in that order. Last season the team failed to produce a winning record, but with the addition of promising freshmen, 1955 should be a winning year.

Wolcott Hall*

The completion of Morris and Wolcott Halls has been a great asset to the physical plant of the college. Scott House was abandoned, and eventually the same fate will befall Kane House and Kingery Hall.

A total of seventy men are housed in the two units. Each room is furnished with built-in beds, chests, desks, shelves, closets, and lockers. Linen and maid service is included in the room contracts. The buildings were designed by architect Eric Gugler, and the interior decorating was supervised by Mrs. Sparks.

Wolcott Hall, ready for occupancy at the beginning of the school year, is named in memory of Mr. Roger Wolcott, a member of the board of trustees from Indianapolis, Indiana. Morris Hall, completed in early November, is dedicated to the late E. M. Morris of South Bend, Indiana.

The two new dormitories and the Campus Center were dedicated in conjunction with Homecoming festivities on October 30.

Great Hall of the Campus Center

The Wabash Caveman had a hard time getting used to the luxurious furnishings of the new Campus Center. The basement facilities—bowling alleys, game room, Scarlet Inn, and publications office—were accepted without question; but it took a while before the need for a first floor was finally conceded. In spite of his opposition, however, the Little Giant proudly conducted his parents and friends on tours of the building.

As the year progressed, meetings in the South Mezzanine and all-school functions in the Great Hall became quite common. And if one walked carefully he didn't sink into the "plush" rugs beyond his ankles. By the end of the year everyone was wondering how Wabash ever got along without a Campus Center for the past hundred and twenty-two years.

Aphratores

The Independent Men's Association, the Aphratores, enjoyed a very successful year. The organization sponsored the Homecoming Dance in the Campus Center, and also had a Christmas dance with the Phi Delt and Kappa Sigs. Once again the IMA distributed the Wabash blotters to all the men on campus. Several informal parties, as well as a freshman "smoker" in the Great Hall, were sponsored by the organization throughout the year.

September

Come the middle of September, the First Prytany of the new school year, the Men of Wabash were once again on their way "down the Monon" to the revamped college campus. In addition to the new buildings, the athletic fields had been entirely rearranged. A victim of rapid change, the football field was still "a bit hilly."

Wolcott Hall was ready for occupancy, and Morris Hall was receiving finishing touches. Rumors that "they even furnish soap" were confirmed by the administration, who commented on the quantity of same "devoured" by some roomers.

The kick-off controversy of the year was centered around the imposing statue of Mr. Lincoln and his dog. The campus underground succeeded in "lifting" Abe's axe. Organized labor also donated a coat of bright scarlet paint which was artistically applied to a conspicuous location. Campus pressure, coupled with actions of the Campus Center Board, finally succeeded in having Abe crated up and stored in South Hall.

The gaily-colored pots of the Rhynies reminded the upperclassmen that there were some two hundred boys on campus who were interested in becoming Wabash Men. The Boule was quick to post the traditional "Rhynie Signs" around campus, and several "smokers" highlighted the last week of September.

October

The all-freshman campus guard before the Butler game excited the older Cavemen with several false alarms. A Wabash victory more than compensated for these slight inconveniences, however, and the Second Prytany began on a lively note—if we can disregard the sour notes of the “Old Wabash” songfest held on October 1.

Various controversies were voiced in The Bachelor, and the Class Boards were formed. A harpsichord concert was enjoyed by all in a long chapel, and the Scarlet Masque announced its first production of the year—Moliere’s “A Doctor in Spite of Himself.”

In anticipation of the Homecoming game, the Senior Council announced the rules for its Homecoming Queen Beauty Contest. The lucky winner was Mac Laetsch, who received a dozen roses and a kiss (?) from Dick Banta.

Many alumni returned to campus for the dedication ceremonies of the Campus Center and the new dormitories. The topper of a successful Homecoming weekend was a smashing victory by the Little Giant eleven.

November

One of the main events of the Third Prytany was the reorganization of the "W" Men's Club. The organization had been defunct for several years. The purpose of the club is "to support the overall athletic program of Wabash College and to aid and abet school spirit." The "W" Men sold programs at all the athletic contests, and with the money they purchased nine trophies to be awarded for various athletic contributions.

Mitsuya Goto and other members of the Speakers' Bureau made many appearances throughout the state of Indiana. By mid-winter Goto had chalked up his 200th speech with the Bureau.

The Caveman eleven had little trouble in drubbing DePauw in the annual Monon Bell clash, and the Beta team captured the IM football crown. Many students took advantage of the shoe shine parlor run by faculty members for the benefit of WUS.

Mitchum's Marching Many added color to halftime festivities at the football games, and the concert band undoubtedly contributed to the fallen ceiling in the basement of chapel. The Dames Club sponsored a rollicking party, which was not a taffy pull as the picture might indicate. Wabash also became $50,000 richer through a Kellogg Grant for stimulation of summer programs on campus.

December

"Of Mice and Men" was the major fall production of the Scarlet Masque. This play of "lonely men" was well-received by the Little Giant theatre-goers. Also along the dramatic line the German Club presented its annual Christmas Pageant. Following the tradition of recent years, the Barbaroi took their play to DePauw for an exchange meeting with the southern club.

The Wabash-DPU tie was the most unusual feature of the Fourth Prytany. "We wuz robbed" became the common chant, but our netters settled the score later in the year. Another key victory over our 'friendly' rivals came about when our soccer team bested theirs in a close match.

Working on a constitution for future years, the Campus Center Board primarily devoted its time to extensive hearings on the role of the Campus Center in the Wabash community. The Board played an important part in discussing and acting upon various aspects of Campus Center policy.

Although kept indoors by the wintry weather, the members of the art classes continued to turn out masterpieces. The Chapel decorations furnished by Alpha Phi Omega, and the big Christmas tree in the Campus Center added a holiday touch to the campus. And over in the gym George Mahorney had finished packing the football equipment and was getting ready for basketball.

January

The end of the Christmas vacation and the grueling cram period before semester finals characterized the month of January, the Fifth Prytany. There were a few breaks in the weather which intimated that an early spring had arrived, but they turned out to be false alarms.

The bowling and game room facilities in the Campus Center provided relief for that mid-January mental fatigue. In the Scarlet Inn, however, there was nothing but controversy—Brubeck and Kenton had become honorary members of the Wabash family. Several faculty members threatened to take their business elsewhere, and a few even mentioned resigning. Student opinion was generally apathetic, and in a few weeks the campus had become accustomed to the new addition. Eventually even some of the ardent opponents of the jukebox secretly deposited coins to hear their favorite "bop" selection, as illustrated by the candid shot below.

The men on the various staffs of college publications ducked between paint buckets as the Howell-Goodwin plant got a face lifting. As always, Alice and Becky were on the job ready to pack up the finished product.

February

All through the Sixth Prytany the editorial page of The Bachelor was filled with pro and con letters and articles on the fraternity restrictive clause controversy. Al Dewey's chapel speech stirred up campus interest, and students and faculty members debated the issue throughout the entire month. A Mock Parliamentary Debate sponsored by the Public Affairs Forum attracted a full house in the Great Hall of the Campus Center. The issue was also studied by both the Blue Key and the Senior Council, with the inevitable conclusion being reached that neither body could act officially on the matter.

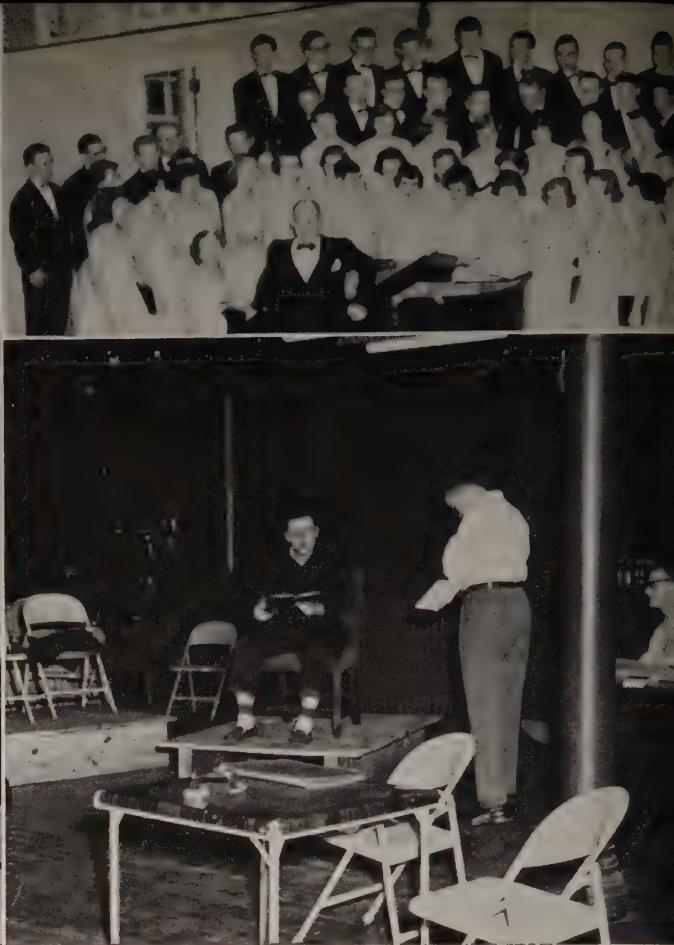

"Three Flips and a Flop" highlighted the chapel programs of the month of February. A capacity crowd jammed into the Campus Center for the after-chapel session, and the chandeliers were shaking well into the night.

Many new men got an opportunity to participate in the Scarlet Masque's "Evening of One-Acts." The plays were well-received by meagre audiences.

The round tables in the Scarlet Inn continued to serve as conference tables for the various executive committees on campus.

March

The Seventh Prytany came in like a lamb—and was escorted out by two wintry blizzards. Events on the Wabash campus followed a similar pattern.

A visit from the "lambs" of the MacMurray Choir started out the month of March on a joyous note. This was the fourth time that the MacMurray and Wabash choristers had banded together, and the second such concert to be presented on our campus. An appreciative audience jammed the chapel for the concert, and the members of the Glee Club further enjoyed the company of their guests at a party in the Campus Center.

Other activities of the month included the local section of the National Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament, initiation ceremonies in the various fraternities, and Senior Study Camp. The Phi Delt house was struck by lightning, and caused a mild sensation on east campus.

The highlight of the month was the Scarlet Masque's production of "The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial." The Masque was the first amateur group in the world to secure production rights for the smash-hit play. The play was enjoyed three nights by near-capacity crowds. Mr. Donald Baker, in his freshman year as Masque director, guided the thespians through one of the most successful seasons in recent years.

Paradise Lost—Paradise Regained

April

With all the recent improvements on campus, this school is still "going to the dogs." Enrollment among our canine friends has increased steadily during the past three years, and all indicators point to a continued influx of furry brethren.

One disgusted pooch was heard to comment that going to college was "a dog's life." Another mutt echoed that he was constantly "hounded" by his professors. A third merely said, "I'm dog-tired of all this learnin."

Professors are up a tree about deciding how to handle the dogs in class. At first they wanted to kick them out, but they found that every single one was duly registered. Since then the professors haven't booted the canines out of classes, as they are afraid of getting in the doghouse with the administration.

One encouraging fact is that the pups aren't very well organized, and they are constantly bickering over who's going to be top-dog. Meanwhile, the homeless hounds have set up dog tents all around campus. They find this mode of living is dog-cheap, in spite of the high overhead.

Members of the golf team have hired several pooches to instruct them in the art of doglegging. It's really a shame that there should be so doggone much competition for all the Brubeck Cats on campus.

Another all-campus blast

May

"It's Pan, man!" With Comprehensives over and three weeks to go before finals, the traditional Pan-Hel blast took the spotlight. Weeks of work on decorations were well worth the joys of a lost-weekend in "Las Vegas." Dave Carroll's orchestra provided the music for the first night, and "Three Flips and a Flop" wound up the festivities on Saturday.

The annual Interfraternity Mother's Day Sing opened the Ninth Prytany. The mothers were guests of their sons at dinners held in the various fraternity houses. The moms also took advantage of the rare occasion offered them to "tour the house." Competition for the coveted song-fest award was keen, and the Phi Gams had a rough time defending their title.

Other activities of the month included the 83rd Baldwin Oratorical, the Blue Key Dinner, and the annual Spring Sports Banquet in the Campus Center. Fraternity rush parties filled up all 'spare' weekends, and soon it was time once again for the "No-Doze" and black coffee.

June

In the Tenth and final Prytany of the school year, the Eupatrids donned their caps and gowns and marched into chapel for the last time. Then they too went out to join the ranks of the hundreds of Wabash alums.

Memories of four challenging years filled their minds: freshman orientation with its pots and pajamas . . . voluntary chapel three times a week . . . moving of Forest Hall . . . finals . . . winning Little Giant football teams . . . the old Scarlet Inn . . . Dr. Sparks on "This Is Your Life" . . . finals . . . compulsory chapel

. . . passing of the Caveman . . . Scarlet Masque's production of "Mr. Roberts" . . . Honor Scholarships . . . The Silver Dollar . . . finals . . . It . . . faculty chapel skit . . . a winning basketball team at last . . . excavation for the Campus Center . . . controversy in The Bachelor . . . Glee Club concerts . . . finals . . . Senior Study Camp . . . hell week . . . vacations . . . Suave . . . excursions to DePauw . . . the lush Campus Center . . . Comprehensives.

The future is unknown, but these men are prepared for it—because they're Wabash Men.

Crawfordsville

The "home away from home" for the Wabash Greek is the 'Athens of the Midwest'—Crawfordsville. It doesn't take long for the Wabash student to become used to Main Street, for C'ville has always extended a hearty welcome to all members of the college community. The town offers a selection of churches, recreational facilities, industries, and business establishments which are a convenience for Wabash Men.

The "Athenians" did well in the high school basketball race, and many Little Giants were among the ranks of those who lost a little money on the state tourney.

The support of local businessmen makes possible the printing of Wabash publications. We on the yearbook staff are indeed indebted to the many advertisers whose ads appear on the following pages.

“Jahn & Ollier Again”

A familiar and reassuring slogan

FAMILIAR...because it has appeared in thousands of the country's finest yearbooks for the past half century. REASSURING...because those years of specialized experience bring complete service, outstanding quality and dependable delivery to the yearbook staffs with whom we work.

Acknowledgments

Had it not been for the concentrated efforts of the Wabash staff members the task of editing and supervising this book would have been an impossibility. Any compliment this book may receive should be directed to their work and conscientiousness.

A special acknowledgment is owed to Mr. Ernest Simmons of Jahn and Ollier Engraving Company for his continuous help throughout the preparation of this book.

The prompt delivery and assistance in the designing of the cover by S. K. Smith and Company deserves a sincere thank you; Smith's representative, Mr. Jack Bundy, attended to all our problems.

For many sleepless nights spent in the darkroom, and for the addition of jokes to the staff's repertoire, especial gratitude is extended to Ralph Haas.

The impressive printing of the book is due to the careful endeavors of Howell-Goodwin Printing Company.

Rogers Studios provided all the portraits appearing in this edition.

Last but most important, our deepest appreciation goes to our advertisers who have made possible the publication of this annual.
